Local Station Applauds Skaters

A local Lincoln, Nebraska radio station, KFOR, aired the following editorial during the American and World Roller Skating Championships held in their city:

If all the world is a stage... as Shakespeare said...and all the people merely players, some stars will surely shine brighter than others when the final curtain falls. One drama is over at this point, and another continues. In nearby Wadena, Iowa, Thousands of young people assembled to hear rock music... and to do other things. If official estimates are correct, nearly all of them took drugs. We don't know what else they did, and we'd rather not try to guess. That's how some of our young people spent their weekend, and it's how some of them are spending their lives. In Lincoln, we can see what others are doing. Young people from all over the world are doing their thing, competing in the American and World Roller Skating Championships. It's KFOR's Viewpoint these are the beautiful people. Not only are they in top physical condition, slender and graceful, but they're reaping the rewards of endless hours of hard work. Not all will carry home trophies, but in KFOR's estimation there are no losers among the roller skaters. In later years they'll look back with pride at their accomplishments--justifiable pride, paid for with years of dedication and years of practice. Can the same be said for those at Wadena? Considering the lives some of them lead, many won't be around in years to come. They would probably say that's their business...and perhaps it is. There are many differences between the skaters and the hippies...not the least of which is the difference between self-discipline and self-indulgence.

A KFOR Viewpoint written and recorded by John Hanlon.
